The Identification Systems Group (ISG) Introduces New Command Case Design

The ISG announces its new emergency management command case and Quick Ship option from Elliott Data Systems' Mobile Solutions

Shawnee, KS (PRWEB) July 26, 2010

The Identification Systems Group (ISG), the nationwide network of local identification system integrators, is pleased to announce in conjunction with Elliott Data Systems, a mobile solution systems developer and integrator, the release of a new design for its Command Case Solution. The new case design encompasses a streamlined structure that is more efficient, provides better handling of accessory items, has more flexible PC specification options and is easier to maintain.

While traditionally produced based on customized configurations chosen by customers, the Mini Mobile Badging Unit and the newly designed Command Case

Solutions are now available in a Quick Ship version. These Quick Ship solutions are produced using a standard configuration and are available at a moment's notice providing customers with a much faster turnaround.

"While we expect to continue providing customers primarily with customized Mobile Solution Command Case and Mobile Badging Units," said Tim Green, Vice President of Elliott Data Systems, Inc. "We feel it's important to have the Quick Ship option available to customers when their situation doesn't allow them the luxury of time to customize their Mobile Solution."

"Elliott Data Systems' new streamlined Command Case design and the quick ship option will give customers the tools they need, when and where they need it and in a more efficient manner," said Roger Sigler, executive director of the ISG. "ISG members have a lasting business relationship with Elliott because they trust Elliott to deliver the products and service their end-users demand."
