Morganton, NC (PRWEB) - February 6, 2024

The Identification Systems Group (ISG), the nationwide network of local identification system integrators, announced that it has donated over $41,000 to Mississippians Against Human Trafficking (MSAHT) out of Jackson, MS.

MSAHT works with law enforcement and victim support agencies to stop human trafficking within Mississippi and abroad. For those rescued from enslavement, whether victims of slave labor or illegal prostitution, MSAHT offers shelter, support and counseling to help them overcome their dreadful experiences and rebuild their lives.

“Our members and partners are grateful to donate to the important mission of MSAHT,” says Tom Stiles, the ISG’s Executive Director.

The donated funds were raised at the ISG’s Annual Fall Meeting where Members and Partners made cash and check donations, as well as purchasing items in a charity golf event and silent auction. “Our members and partners are grateful to donate to the important mission of MSAHT,” says Tom Stiles, the ISG’s Executive Director.

Heather Bradley, Executive Director for Mississippians Against Human Trafficking (MSAHT), extended sincere appreciation for the invaluable support provided by the Identification Systems Group (ISG).

“The remarkable generosity demonstrated by the ISG’s members and partners at their Annual Fall Meeting serves as a ray of hope for those ensnared by the darkness of human trafficking. Their compassionate donation of over $41,000 to Mississippians Against Human Trafficking is a testament to the unwavering dedication of the ISG community to our cause.

This direct support from the ISG not only strengthens MSAHT’s capabilities across the state, but also empowers us to broaden our impact and fortify our commitment to assisting victims. This significant contribution has not only sustained our ongoing initiatives, but has also been instrumental in expanding our endeavors, playing a pivotal role in helping survivors achieve enduring independence.”
